Reading Comprehension (40 points)

Question Number One: (20 points)

Read the following passage carefully then complete the tasks below.

Are today's young sports stars overpaid? It's an opinion you'll often hear repeated, especially in the world of football. The figures are astonishing. When the Welsh player Gareth Bale joined Real Madrid in 2013, his reported salary was around £250,000 a week or, if you prefer, £13 million a year. So every week he earns as much as the average Real supporter makes in ten years. This may be an extreme example, but there are a lot more footballers around the world earning almost as much.

It's a situation that makes some people very angry, but those who are infuriated by it often forget what players have to do to get to the top, and the risks involved. A new book by Wayne Barton tells the story of some of those who fell on the way up. These are young men who achieved the dream of playing for the famous club Manchester United, but only had short careers, often because of injuries. Take young Tony Gill, for example, who was on his way to becoming a regular first team player when he hurt his leg and was never able to recover, or the young forward Deiniol Graham, who broke his arm and never played professionally again.

The list of these tragedies goes on, but the story that stands out is that of Giuliano Maiorana. At the age of 19, he was playing for an amateur team in Cambridgeshire, England when he was noticed by one of Manchester United's many scouts, who was searching the lower levels of football for promising young players. At first Giuliano thought the offer of a trial for the world-famous Manchester club was a joke. It wasn't – only months later, he played his first match at United's home ground, Old Trafford. He still remembers the mixture of excitement and terror he felt.

Unfortunately, he didn't get on well with the manager, and was soon playing in the reserve team. It was in a reserve match two years later that his knee was badly damaged. Soon, at the age of 24, his career was finished. For seven years after that, he couldn't even watch football. He now works for his family's business back in Cambridge, moving furniture, and says that he now wishes he hadn't been so good at football when he was young.

Question Number Two: (20 points)

Read the text about comfort zone then answer the questions that follow:

A comfort zone is a psychological state where people feel at ease and in control of their environment, experiencing low levels of anxiety and stress. It's like being in a familiar and safe space where we believe we have enough of everything we need, like love, food, talent, and time. However, staying in our comfort zone can limit our growth and development .

There are advantages of staying in our comfort zone. For example, when we stick to familiar activities, we can draw on our past experiences and perform tasks we know well. This can increase our confidence and limit anxiety. Familiar tasks also come with less risk, as we know how to handle them. Returning to our comfort zone after pushing ourselves outside of it can help us recharge and recover before facing more challenging situations. Additionally, routine tasks in our comfort zone require less energy and allow us to focus on more demanding work.

On the other hand, there are also reasons to step out of our comfort zone. Leaving our comfort zone can lead to personal growth and new experiences. It can help us overcome fears and expand our boundaries. Stepping outside of our comfort zone once can make it easier to do it again in the future. While it may be uncomfortable and uncertain, pushing ourselves outside of our comfort zone can lead to amazing outcomes. It's important to find a balance between pushing our boundaries and having a relaxing space to retreat to when we need to recharge.

In conclusion, a comfort zone is a familiar and safe psychological state where we feel in control and at ease. While staying in our comfort zone has its benefits, stepping outside of it can lead to personal growth and new experiences. It's important to find a balance between pushing our boundaries and having a space to retreat to when we need to recharge. So, don't be afraid to step out of your comfort zone and embrace new challenges!
